

ABSTRACT

A method and system for processing a distorted digital image B that is a convolution of an undistorted image F and a point spread function. Noise is removed from the image B so as to produce an image B' of reduced noise. The image F is then obtained based upon a calculation involving the image B' .

00170010 00000000